— THE STORY

This is not polished safari theatre.

The Congo Basin is older, denser and far less travelled than the safari landscapes most people know. Wildlife is not lined up on open plains here. It is hidden in green shadow, heard before it is seen, and revealed slowly to travellers willing to move at the forest's pace.

This expedition follows Kamba's classic Odzala route, moving through Ngaga, Lango and Mboko lodges. Each camp reveals a different side of the forest, from closed-canopy gorilla habitat to bai, river systems, savanna and rainforest edge.

With Martin Gregus beside you, the journey becomes more than rare wildlife access. It is a chance to learn how to observe patiently, work with low light and dense forest, and create images in one of the most complex ecosystems on the planet.

Brand New Product

This is a first-run Airguides Congo expedition, open only to the first eight guests ready to move early.

"To be in the presence of a unique visionary like Martin Gregus and be welcomed into his home away from home in the middle of nowhere is truly a once in a lifetime event."

Anne Prather, United States

— YOUR STORYTELLER

Martin Gregus knows how to wait for the frame.

Martin has worked across all seven continents, from polar ice to dense wilderness. His work has earned two Wildlife Photographer of the Year wins, National Geographic coverage and cinematography credits across Disney, BBC and Netflix productions.

In the Congo, that experience matters. Low light, dense canopy and quick wildlife encounters reward people who understand patience, preparation and restraint.

Martin's role is not to turn the forest into a classroom. It is to help you notice more, move better and come home with images that carry the feeling of being there.
